

Women's Studies

Program Planning Guide for students minoring in Women's Studies

WOMEN'S STUDIES:

Berry's Women's Studies Program supports interdisciplinary teaching and research on women and gender, with a particular focus on the intersections of gender with race, class, and other aspects of identity that shape human experience.

The minor in women's studies requires the successful completion of 18 credit hours, including

1. WNS 210 Introduction to Women's Studies;
2. WNS 412 Women's Studies Seminar; and
3. Four courses chosen from the following:

ANT 320WI	Women in Global Perspective
ART 413WI	Women and Art
BUS/WNS 212	Gender and Business
COM 418	Gender and Media
EDU/WNS 409	Gender and Education
ENG 430	Women's Literature
ENG 434	Gender and Language
ENG 432WI	Southern Women's Literature
FLM 418	Women Directors
GOV 350	Women in Politics
HIS 375	U.S. Women's History
MUS 346	Women in Music
PSY 303	Health Psychology in Sociocultural Context
PSY 385WI	Psychology of Women
REL 320	Biblical Women
REL 326	Goddess Traditions of Asia
REL 331	Christian Faith and Feminist Critique
REL 382	Women in World Religions
SOC 335	Social Inequality, Race, Class and Gender
THE 228	Women and Drama
WNS 344	Special Topics in Women's Studies
WNS/SOC/GOV 387	Gender, Law, and Society
WNS 496	Internship
WNS 498	Directed Study

Students should take WNS 210 Introduction to Women's Studies as early as possible and take the WNS 412 Women's Studies Seminar in the spring of the Junior or Senior years. Students minoring in women's studies are encouraged to participate in an internship. The other courses can be taken at any time; however, many of the courses are offered on a rotating basis so students are encouraged to consult the WNS website to see when their desired courses will be offered.

05/05

42