Women’s and Gender Studies

Spring 2016

SOC 335 A: Social Inequality: Race Class, and Gender
Dr. Sarah Allred
H 2pm-4:30pm
A course focused on an empirical and theoretical exploration into the causes and consequences of inequality in contemporary society, with an emphasis on the economic and cultural disadvantages of minorities, women and the poor. Topics include poverty, social mobility, affirmative action, racism, sexism, and rape.

PSY 385 IA: Psychology of Women
Dr. Susan Conradsen
MWF 12pm
This writing intensive, discussion-oriented course explores the psychological, emotional, and cognitive aspects of a wide range of issues related to women.

PSY 443 A: Social Innovation and Psychology of Poverty
Dr. Dexter
TH 12:30pm
This course will explore applications of social entrepreneurship to understanding and combatting poverty through a psychological framework.

WNS 210 A: Introduction to Women’s Studies
Dr. Susan Conradsen
MWF 10am
This introduction to gender studies provides an overview of the history and current status of women, paying particular attention to diversity in women’s experiences.

ANT 320 A: Gender in Anthropological Perspective
Dr. Anne Lewinson
TH 9:30am
An exploration into the crucial dimension of gender in organizing societies through analyzing common patterns and cross-cultural variation in gender roles, sexuality, ideologies, symbolic meanings, hierarchy, and economic development.

PSY 211 IA: Human Sexuality
Dr. Julie Johnson-Pynn
MW 2pm
A study of the biological basis of the human sexual response system, sexual individuality and values, reproduction and health, and legal and social issues related to human sexuality through classic studies in human sexuality as well as new research generated in the field.

WNS 412 A: Women’s Studies Seminar
Dr. Susan Conradsen
MWF 11am
This is the capstone course for Women’s and Gender studies. Students undertake major projects in which they apply the theories and methodology of women’s studies to their major fields. Non-WNS minors can take this class.

Summer

WNS 344 A: Social Activism
Dr. Susan Conradsen
A hands-on course diving into the Atlanta community through direct service with a variety of non-profits working to make the world a better place. (Limited to 10 people)

PSY 443 A: Mothering: Human Development Seminar
Dr. Susan Conradsen
This discussion oriented class will cover a wide range of topics related to mothering studies from a psychological perspective.