 Space in our classrooms is limited, so we will ask you to pre-register during check-in if you’d like to observe a live class. See the schedule supplement for more information about the classes that will be available for visitors.
Below you will find the courses offered for the Live Class Observation options. Pre-registration for the Live Class Observations will take place during Check-in on Monday morning. Open seats in each classroom are limited, so these options will be available first-come first-served and will close when they reach maximum capacity.

Because there are multiple other options outside of the Live Classes during each breakout time, we will limit each student to only one Live Class. And of course, if you’d like to spend your time attending the other sessions outside of the Live Classes, we welcome you to do that. We’re sure you’ll learn something and enjoy the day no matter what you choose!
