

Overview of First-Year Mentor Responsibilities 2019

Job Description: First-Year Mentors are expected to work 6 hours each week for the first ten weeks of the semester. Approximately 2 hours are spent in the BCC 100 classroom, contributing to the class as arranged with the course instructor. The other hours are spent working with first-year students as a group or individually outside of class and completing other tasks assigned by the instructor. Mentors should plan to meet regularly with their instructors at least 20 minutes each week. Mentors are also expected to attend bi-weekly mentor reports and attend bi-weekly mentor meetings. During the last 4 weeks of the semester, mentors are paid for 4 hours of work. This time should be spent reaching out to and interacting with students, especially those students who may be having difficulties.

Being a first-year mentor requires a serious commitment of both time and energy. Applicants should consider their fall coursework, other leadership positions, and work assignments before applying. Resident Assistants and KCAB officers may not be First-Year Mentors.

ADDITIONAL RESPONSIBILITIES

Administrative:

- Turn in a bi-weekly activity report online. You'll receive a reminder each week.
- Attend all mentor meetings. These will be once a week at the beginning of the semester, and then will drop to every other week.
- Meet with your ME group once a week. This can be any time that works for your group, to encourage one another, brainstorm and troubleshoot any problems your class may be having.
- Post your work hours every pay period. You'll be paid a stipend equivalent to 6 hours of work. Please just post 1 hour per week.
- Meet with your instructor for about 20 minutes a week outside of class to compare observations about how the class is going, share concerns, and plan class activities and lessons. Depending on the wishes and/or needs of your instructor, you should plan to take an active role in planning the class. Your instructor will probably be glad to have your input.
- Attend every class meeting and speak up throughout the course whenever you can add an experienced student's unique perspective to the discussion. Your instructor may also want to turn certain discussions over to you to lead.

- Check in with any student who is not in class to be sure he or she is ok and to catch the student up on assignments. This is especially critical during Viking Venture, when students are apt to make mistakes with the schedule.
- Additional duties: Your instructor may ask you to take over some of administrative duties such as taking role, grading quizzes, and checking assignments.
- Report to your ME leader or KP with any questions.

General:

- Interact with your students outside of class. You should plan to spend approximately 3 hours each week interacting with students outside of the classroom. In addition to group activities such as hikes to the reservoir or dinner at Schroeder's, look for ways to interact with individuals and or small groups of students. In the past, mentors have called on students in their dorm rooms, invited one or two students to lunch each week, taken students with them on a Wal-Mart run, etc. Your students can give you suggestions for group activities.
- Be available to help in the FYE Office as needed. From time to time we will need help with projects, surveys, etc. Please try to be as helpful as your schedule will permit.

Viking Venture:

- Attend and participate in activities for your class as scheduled. Your participation will ensure your students' participation.
- Arrange transportation to your instructor's home for the summer book discussion. Take a few minutes at the end of the Viking Venture class to set up carpools and distribute directions.
- Participate in the summer book discussion. Be sure that you have read the summer reading book and speak up during the discussion. Try to think of questions to move the discussion along.

First-Year Service Day:

- Arrange transportation, pick up t-shirts for your class, and take cookout reservations prior to First-Year Service Day.
- Contact the agency or supervisor of your project prior to First-Year Service Day to confirm arrangements and directions to the site.
- Turn in to the FYE Office a waiver form for each student participating in First-Year Service Day.
- Serve as foreman of your work crew.

After BCC Ends:

- Help your students plan for registration and register for classes.
- Plan one event for the entire BCC class between the end of BCC and the end of the semester.
- Have one "office hour" per week when you are available to all of your students.

Mentors must be in good academic and social standing. As student leaders, they are expected to comply with all rules of the Viking Code.
